RECENT REALTY RECORDINGS

A Correction.

In Saturday's issue of the Daily News it was stated that C. L. Hahn was a candidate for Mayor of Goodall. It should have read C. L. Horn. For Collector and Marshal, the candidate is Theodore Carter.

Malicious Destructions of Property.

There is in every city or town a certain number of men who make a habit of tanking up on cheap liquor and it is then that their natural depravity, held in subservience when sober from fear of the law, crops out. These men frequently make night hideous with their yelling or firing pistols, or perhaps the notion takes them to see what they can break up and destroy — always the property of another, of course.

Friday night some parties, supposed to have been in the same fix, paraded Ocean Boulevard late at night and upset six of the handsome coquina urns which line the sidewalks. The police have been unable to locate the guilty parties. The town council of Seabreeze has now offered a reward of $20 for information which will lead to their conviction.

Valuable Property Sold.

Saturday W. H. Peters sold to Jacob Gindick, of Pittsfield, Mass., his dwelling and lot at the corner of Ridgewood and Third avenues, the price paid being upwards of $10,000.

It is the intention of Mr. Gindick to add forty rooms to the present structure and convert it into a hotel, the work to be completed before another season.

On Wedding Tour.

Mr and Mrs. Thos. E. Barrett, who are on their bridal tour, and Miss Helen C. Reilly, sister of the bride, all of Wheeling, W. Va., left this morning for Palm Beach and other southern resorts. The party expect to return north in May and will spend the summer at Atlantic City. Miss Helen will probably return to Wheeling in July.

JUST LIKE A WOMAN.

The Beautiful Girl and the Young Man Whom She Rejected.

"What? You refuse me?" His face betraying his intense astonishment and chagrin, the young man who faced the beautiful girl who had just blasted all his hopes staggered back in an excess of emotion. Then he drew himself up laughingly.

"It is, of course, your privilege," he said, "but do you realize what I have done for you? Six months ago, when we first became acquainted, I began to spend money. Look at the carriages we have had, the flowers I have sent, the elaborate suppers I have given you! Perhaps it is wrong to speak of these things, but did you not permit me to do all this? Indeed, did you not encourage me in my lavishness? How comes it now, in view of these facts, that you reject me? Was I not right in hoping for victory?"

She shook her head. "Certainly not," she replied. "I did the right thing. Why, my dear boy, if I had had the slightest idea of marrying you do you suppose I would have permitted you to spend all that money?" — Judge.

Willing to Pay For It.

The proud father was talking with the principal of the school about his girl.

"Your daughter, sir, is not making the progress she should. She's backward in French, doesn't seem to take to German, despises mathematics and"

"Wait a minute, professor. Now tell me what's at the bottom of all this. Does she like her teachers?"

"I am afraid," replied the pedagogue, "that your daughter lacks capacity."

"Capacity? Capacity! Is that all? Then find it for her, sir, find it for her and charge it up in your bill!" — New York Press.

Other Things.

Two small country lads met on the way to school.

"Howdy, Bill?" said one. "Have you all planted any potatoes?"

"Sure," replied Bill. "We all planted high three bushel."

"Three bushel?" cried the other. "Say, Bill, me and pap planted twelve bushel."

Bill was at a loss for a minute or so and his little face lengthened. Then suddenly it brightened.

"Well," he said, "you see, we all eat something besides potatoes at our house." — Lippincott's Magazine.

A Phenomenon.

"Your husband ain't very industrious, is he?" said the woman who was sitting in the sleigh in front of the village store.

"Well," answered the woman in the spring wagon, "sometimes he is and sometimes he ain't. He'll travel for miles and miles with a shotgun on his shoulder, but he can't walk a hundred yards with an armful of wood." — Washington Star.

Nothing but the Truth.

"My work," remarked the baldheaded dentist, "is so painless that my patients often fall asleep in the chair while I am at work."

"Huh, that's nothing!" retorted his rival. "My patients nearly all insist on having their pictures taken while I am at work in order to catch the expression of delight on their faces." — Chicago News.

Where It Was Warmed.

"Br-r-r!" This car's as cold as Greenland. Why don't you warm it?" complained the passenger.

"G'wan!" retorted the conductor. "Wasn't it warmed all night last night in the car barn? You people want the earth, don't you?" — Newark News.

The Fountain of Youth.

Mr. Jones—My daughter is only eighteen. You had better wait until she is older. The Lover—Well, I've waited two years for her to get older, but she still stays at eighteen.—Judge.

Jolley—What a bright face your baby has!

Popley—Yes. Unfortunately, though, it isn't bright enough to light the way to its mouth in the dark when you have to give it colic medicine at night. — Philadelphia Press.

Waiting For a Fairy Tale.

Little Clara—Mother, tell me a fairy tale.

Mrs. Grayboy (glancing at the clock)—Wait until your father comes home, dear, and he will tell us both one. — Modern Society.

A Sticker.

Fusser—Yes, sir, old man, I'm a regular shine in society!

Friend (?—A sort of a parlor lamp, eh? No matter how often you turn 'em down they won't go out. — Princeton Tiger.

All a Mistake.

Julius—How well Miss de Train holds her age!

Julia—She doesn't hold it at all. She gives it away every time she smiles. — Chicago Tribune.

Easy When You Know How.

"It's remarkable," said the doctor, "how much excitement a bean or some equally small object can cause when it is lodged in a baby's nose. This morning a frantic mother rushed into my office and implored me to extract a bean which her baby had put into its nose. Improvising a suitably bent probe from a hairpin I borrowed from the hysterical woman, I succeeded in removing the bean in less time than it would take to count six. And the first thing the woman said was:

"Why, I could have done that myself!" — New York Press.

Repartee.

"If they ever get to writing the truth in epigrams," said the man with the angry eyes, "I hope I may live long enough to write what will go on your tombstone."

"If they ever put the truth on 'em," retorted the man with the aggressive chin, "I hope I'll live long enough to read what goes on yours." — Judge.

Accent on the "Man."

"Well," he said during their quarrel, "I suppose you'll be wanting a divorce next?"

"Really," she replied coldly, "I don't see why it should be necessary in this case. A woman doesn't need a divorce unless she has been married to a man." — Philadelphia Press.

Under Suspicion.

"What do you think of that college professor who says he never kissed a girl?"

"Possibly," said Miss Cayenne, "it is the simple confession of an unworldly soul, and then again it may be a very sly way of advertising for bids." — Washington Star.

A Palpable Hit.

Bunker—You've seen Miss Dash on the links, eh? Then you must have noticed how recklessly she approaches the ball.

Newcome—Yes, that was the first thing to strike my eye. — Catholic Standard and Times.

A Forecast.

Little six-year-old Dot while conversing with her mamma the other day asked, "Mamma, if I'm alive when I get married may I please live at home with you and papa?" — Lippincott's Magazine.

Quite Natural.

"What's his name?"

"Bill Short."

"Why does every one call him Jones?"

"For Short." — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Gilbert Walden.

Gilbert Walden, who will appear at the Opera House tomorrow night, will be assisted by Miss Elma Laredo in his musical entertainment. Miss Laredo is also a noted rifle shot and will give an exhibition of rifle shooting and lariat throwing. The Memphis Commercial Appeal, speaking of Gilbert Walden, says:

"Gilbert Walden, the Cowboy Orator and noted elocutionist, gave a splendid entertainment here. It was replete with songs and music and touching and humorous stories of the old South. His rendition of the 'Bells' is wonderful. He told thrilling incidents of Cowboy and Indian life, and closed his exhibition with splendid rifle shooting and expert work with the lasso."

PREPARING FOR INSPECTION.

The Halifax Rifles Getting Ready for Visit of General Foster and Colonel Norvell.

Everything is getting lively in local military circles at present on account of the inspection of Co. K., second regiment of the Florida state troops, popularly known as the Halifax Rifles.

At the inspection tonight Lieut. Fred. Caldwell will command the company, which is now without a captain, due to the promotion of its former commanding officer, Major J. B. Parkinson.

This will be the first time the troops have been inspected since the state encampment, during the first week in September, last year. The inspection is to be made by Adjutant-General J. Clifford R. Foster and Colonel S. T. Norvell, United States Army, retired, who has been designated by the United States War Department as inspector of the Florida state troops.

It has been said that there are some business men in Daytona who strenuously protest against their employees who are members of military companies getting off to attend to any military duties during business hours. Yet these same business men would think that they were being shamefully treated if the military did not protect their property during the time of a riot or disturbance of any kind. The military is a necessity, and it is only through the co-operation of the business men employing members of the state troops that the organization can be kept up to a high standard.

Adjutant-General Foster has worked hard and faithfully to improve the standard of the state troops, and with the limited means at his disposal, has accomplished wonders, but there are always those who are ready and willing to criticize every defect that can be found. The critics should be the ones to suffer and then they would be the first to see the importance of maintaining a well
